Beloit, Wis., Feb. 6.—The case of the "State" versus "Berger" for selling colored oleo will probably never come to trial. Along with this intense cold was a heavy fog this morning and a "sun dog" was visible, promising more cold weather.

GEORGIA ON VERGE OF DEMORALIZATION

Is Belief of Anti-Saloon Men and They Are Formulating Plans for Legislation.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 6.—Foes of the liquor traffic gathered here this morning to perfect the organization of the Georgia Anti-Saloon League and to discuss plans for getting an anti-liquor measure through the present legislature. The temperance element is of the opinion that Georgia is on the verge of demoralization and will go to the bad entirely unless the demon rum is set upon good and hard. The call for the present gathering sets forth a condition of affairs rather startling to those who have lived in blissful ignorance of the facts. The call states, among other things, that "There are 120 dry counties in Georgia, and 26 wet counties; and every dry county in the state is a common dumping ground for the heartiest wet counties. And vain are the protests and mild and the cries for mercy, but the jug runs right on, and every year the people of our beloved state, from the mountains to the seaboard, are being debauched by these few wet counties. The time has come to call a halt. The people have been outraged and sinned long enough. Relief must come."

STAGE DOOR-KEEPER SAID ON STAND THAT WHITE HAD THREATENED THAW'S LIFE

Witness Swore That He Communicated Architect's Statement To Defendant--Thaw's Sisters And Other Women Retired From The Court Room.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Feb. 6.—At the opening of court today Attorney Delmas of San Francisco took charge of the Thaw defense.

Withdrawal Objection
Immediately after the trial was resumed District Attorney Jerome withdrew his objection to the introduction of testimony regarding insanity in the collateral branches of the Thaw family.

Thaw's Life Threatened
The biggest sensation of the day was the testimony of Benjamin Boman, a stage doorkeeper. He swore that in 1903 he heard Stanford White threaten to take Thaw's life. He said he communicated the threat to Thaw.

White's Language Obscene
When Boman stated the name White called Thaw, Justice Fitzgerald announced that if there were any ladies in the court room whose sense of propriety would not permit them to hear such testimony they might withdraw.

Women Leave Court
Several immediately went out. Among them were Mrs. George L. Carnegie and the Countess of Yarmouth, sisters of the defendant.

Boman further stated that Stanford White was seeking Evelyn Nesbitt a reply.

when he made the threat against Thaw. And then during the cross-examination by Jerome the witness admitted that White did not use Thaw's name.

Actions Irrational
Another witness, Martin Green, a newspaper man, testified to being an eye-witness to the killing of White. He said that Thaw's actions after the shooting were irrational.

Thaw Pales Today
The strain of the trial is telling more and more upon the defendant. Today Thaw seemed paler than yesterday, but evinced a lively interest in Boman's testimony. During the cross-questioning of the latter named Thaw's sister returned to the court room.

Evelyn's Note to Thaw
Thomas McCaleb, one of Thaw's companions on the Madison Square roof garden the night of the tragedy, was called to the stand and testified that he saw Mrs. Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw pass a note to her husband at the Cafe Martin, just previous to the shooting.

Delmas Asks for Note
Then, defending Attorney Delmas asked Jerome to produce the paper note and a dramatic scene ensued. Jerome sat silent and refused to make a reply.

UNOSTENTATIOUS WEDDING OF HIGH SOCIETY FOLK

Accomplished Young Lady Of Distinguished Lineage Quietly Married To Well Known Clubman.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Feb. 6.—About 100 people gathered in St. Thomas church this afternoon to witness one of the most fashionable and at the same time one of the most unostentatious church weddings of the season.

The bride was Miss Florence Flower, the eldest daughter of Mrs. James de Laval Flower, formerly of New Orleans, now of New York, and the bridegroom was Mr. Pierre Lorillard Barbey, a well-known clubman.

Owing to the recent death of the bridegroom's father no attempt was made at an elaborate wedding. The guests were confined to the relatives of the two families and a few intimate friends from New Orleans, Boston and this city. Miss Estelle Flower was the bride's only attendant.

Mr. Henry C. Barbey, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. An informal reception followed at the Flower home in East Sixty-first street.

The bride, who is of the blonde type of beauty, was introduced to society with several of the popular young women of today, including Miss Janet Fish and Miss Sybil Kane. She received her education through private tutors. Her knowledge of French, German, Spanish and Russian is almost faultless. She is also accomplished in music and rides exceptionally well.

Last summer she spent several months in Europe with her mother and sister. Her mother is a descendant of the old Livermore family of New York and Connecticut. Robert ton.

Stuart Howard, her grandfather, is a direct descendant of the Dukes of Norfolk, and her paternal grandfather, the late Richard Flower, is related to the oldest and most prominent families in Louisiana.

Mr. Barbey received his early education in England, and was graduated from Harvard in 1904. He has never engaged actively in business, but is interested in mines in Colorado and elsewhere. His mother was Miss Lorillard, a sister of the late Pierre Lorillard and of the late Mrs. Lawrence Kip and of Mrs. James P. Kernochan. His sisters are the Countess de Pourtales and the Countess de Neufville, and Miss Rita Barbey.

World of Fashion Turns Out
New York, Feb. 6.—The world of fashion turned out in full force this afternoon to witness the wedding of Miss Louise Vanderhoef, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Vanderhoef, and Mr. Gustave Maurice Heckscher, which took place in St. Bartholomew's church. Both bride and bridegroom are well known in the younger set of fashionable society.

American Weds in London London, Feb. 6.—A fashionable assemblage that included many of the prominent members of the American colony filled St. Margaret's church, Westminster, today at the wedding of Miss Alice Marquand, granddaughter of the late Henry Marquand, who was one of the founders of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, and sister. Her mother is a descendant of the old Livermore family of New York and Connecticut. Robert ton.

ONE CHINAMAN WORTH TWO JAPS, SAYS GENERAL BRAGG

"Iron Brigade" Leader Calls Little Yellow Men Most Swell-Headed Class Of People In World--Soldiers Is Strong.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 6.—General Edward S. Bragg, of the old "Iron Brigade," who loved Cleveland for the enemies he made and who said that good Cubans are as impossible as whistles from pig tails when he was consul in Havana, in an interview today said to the Japanese. He said the talk of war with the Japs is all "poppycock," and added that the Japs are the "most insinuating, swell-headed" class of people in the world, due largely to their recent victory over Russia.

Japs Caused Boycott
While a break between the Japs and Americans may come some time, it is not imminent. The recent boycott of American goods by China was caused largely by the Japanese. The Japanese discovered they could not compete with the Americans and during the boycott stamped American goods with Japanese trade marks, but they forgot to erase the firm names on the other sides of the packages.

Jap Soldiers Friends
General Bragg, who was also consul in Hong Kong after his meteoric career in the national gold democracy says that there is no comparison between the American and Japanese soldiers. He says that every Japanese is for the Japanese nation. Patriotism is their religion. Subsisting on almost nothing, they fight like fiends.

Roosevelt Is Hit
The general says the school question in San Francisco should be settled by the Californians and national interference is violation of state rights. He adds, one Chinaman is worth two Japanese as far as character and manhood are concerned. Although the Japanese are now prominent in the real Oriental trouble is that the countless hordes of Chinese may arise, but it will be some time before the yellow peril breaks loose.

WOULD MAKE THE
PLANS COMPLETE

HEYBURN WOULD PURCHASE MUCH PROPERTY IN WASH-INGTON.

FOR FUTURE IMPROVEMENTS

Making It Possible to Build New Buildings For the Government.

(Special Correspondence.)

Washington, D. C., February 6.— The unanimity with which the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds decided to report favorably on the bill of Senator Heyburn to procure ground in Washington, by purchase or condemnation, for future sites for government buildings in this city will prove, highly gratifying to the country at large. The American people are liberal and thoroughly believe in making the capital city of the country the most attractive city in the world, and this the bill of Senator Heyburn proposes to do. Hitherto the public buildings have been scattered around the city. Many of them have ample grounds around them that can be beautified and made attractive, but some of them are wholly destitute in this respect. South of Pennsylvania avenue the government already has several buildings, such as the postoffice, the agricultural department, the national museum, the medical museum, the Smithsonian institute, the bureau of printing and engraving, and the new district building. In addition it owns the grounds occupied by the botanical garden, and the famous White Lot, and the Washington monument grounds. The White Lot, the grounds around Washington monument, the agricultural department, the Smithsonian institute and the museums are locally known as The Mall.

The Heyburn bill proposes to secure all the property south of the avenue to the Mall, and from the botanical garden to Fourteenth street, and to place all government buildings to be erected in the future on these grounds. By such purpose the government would own in one body ground enough for all its needs for building sites for many years to come, and still leave enough for spacious parks around them. In the very near future it will be imperative necessary for the government to erect several new buildings for public use.
None of the buildings are large enough for the present needs of the departments occupying them, and other quarters have to be rented, thus dividing the departments up into several buildings and some of them quite remote from the main building; while the department of commerce and labor, and the department of justice are in rented buildings not adapted for the uses of the departments. The ground it is now proposed to secure are constantly advancing in value, and the delay of even a year or two would add much to the expense of securing the property.

natured alcohol in the manufacturing

A Reasonable Plea
For The Stomach

If Your Stomach is Lacking in Digestive Powers, Why Not Help the Stomach Do Its Work—Especially When It Costs Nothing To Try?

Not with drugs, but with a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach. Scientific analysis shows that digestion requires pepsin, nitrogenous ferments, and the secretion of hydrochloric acid. When your food fails to digest, it is proof positive that some of these agents are lacking in your digestive apparatus.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain nothing but these natural elements necessary to digestion, and are placed at work in the weak stomach and small intestines, supply what these organs need. They stimulate the gastric glands and gradually bring the digestive organs back to their normal condition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been subjected to critical chemical tests at home and abroad and are found to contain nothing but natural digestives.

I have analyzed most carefully a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets (which I bought myself at a city chemist's shop for the purpose), manufactured by the F. A. Stuart Co., Temple Chambers, London, E. C. and trace of vegetable or mineral poisons. Knowing the ingredients of the tablets, I am of the opinion that they are admirably adaptable for the purpose for which they are intended.

(Signed)

John R. Brooke, F. I. C. F. C. S.

There is no secret in the preparation of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.
Their composition is commonly known among physicians, as is shown by the recommendation of 40,000 incensed physicians in the United States and Canada. They are the most popular of all remedies for indigestion, dyspepsia, water brash, insomnia, loss of appetite, melancholia, constipation, dysentery and kindred diseases originating from improper dissolution and assimilation of foods, because they are thoroughly reliable and harmless to man or child.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are, at once a safe and a powerful remedy, one grain of these tablets being strong enough (by test) to digest 3, 000 grains of steak, eggs and other foods. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest your food for you when your stomach can't.

have some deleterious effect can relieve themselves of such fear. The denaturing agent provided is a solution of nicotine and as nicotine is the active agent of tobacco its presence in the alcohol, to be used on tobacco can do no harm whatever. One hundred gallons of the denaturant is composed of eighty-eight gallons of water and 12 gallons of an aqueous solution of nicotine, of 40 per cent strength.
Into this 100 gallons will be put two-fifths of a pound of yellow aniline dye and two-fifths of a pound of blue aniline dye. One hundred gallons of this denaturant will denature ten thousand gallons of pure ethyl alcohol which quantity is sufficient to flavor two million pounds of tobacco. The dyes are merely to give sufficient color to the denatured alcohol to warn persons spreading it that it is undrink-able. Spread over two million pounds of tobacco the amount of the dye to the pound is infinites being about 1-25000, part of one per cent. The aniline dyes to be used are the same as those used in coloring candies, and the blue dye is used in much larger quantities in whitening sugar. The manufacturers of tobacco are greatly pleased at the decision of the commissioner of internal revenue.

Speaking of the denatured alcohol, it looks as though congress would fail to act at this session on the proposition to authorize the use of small locked stills by the farmers. The denatured alcohol bill was passed because of the pressure from the farmers who had been led to believe they could use their surplus crops and peculiarly corn and potatoes unfit for feeding, by turning them into alcohol to light their houses, operate their machinery. But when it comes to hauling the same to a distillery and then buying the alcohol the matter assumes a somewhat different aspect.
Up to the present the only persons to be benefited are the distillers and the manufacturers who can use denatured alcohol in place of pure alcohol. They save the government tax.

No doubt congress would be glad to assist the farmers in the matter of denatured alcohol but the difficulties in the way are very great. Alcohol furnishes a large part of the revenues of the government and must be kept under the strictest sort of supervision.
The operation of a hundred thousand separate stills, even if padlocked and sealed, might easily lead to all kinds of trouble. It will take time and patience to solve the problem.

Again returning to free alcohol, it is remarkable how congress responded to the wishes of the farmers on this subject and how they turned them down on the free seed question.
When the farmers wanted free alcohol for industrial purposes and their organizations passed resolutions, they were the "honey-handed sons of toil." The honest farmer on whose shoulders the prosperity of the nation rested, etc., etc., ad nauseam! But when these same organizations, including the National Grange, National Farmers' Congress and hundreds of state and local societies, petitioned congress to cease the pumpkin seed distribution, and give them something really new, rare and valuable, they are derisively termed "kid glove" farmers, and with a whoop the house turned down their wishes, and rejected the pumpkin seed appropriation. "Why thus?" asks the unsophisticated. "Whisper," brother farmer, it is a secret! Your member of congress has nothing to lose personally by free alcohol. But if the pumpkin seed distribution is cut off he can no longer favor you with cheap garden seeds at the expense of the government! People who get these squash and tomato offerings should bear in mind that the people pay for them, not the congressmen. Further, there are thousands of these packages of seeds sold every year in the United States capital. By whom? The congressmen who gaily vote for the appropriation? Heaven forbid! No true friend of the farmer would vote himself seeds and then sell them! Yet they are sold like doves in the Temple centuries ago.
Where do they come from?

EYEBALL INJURED BY

SPUTTERING METAL

Frank Sullivan Met With a Serious Mishap While Engaged in Pouring Liquid Iron Into Mould.

While Frank Sullivan was engaged in the work of moulding yesterday, the liquid metal suddenly threw out a sputtering jet of tiny fragments, a number of which lodged about his eyes and ears. Some of these penetrated his left eyeball and he was hastily removed to the office of Dr. Bandick where the injuries were attended to.
It is not believed that his vision will be permanently impaired. Twenty-seven tiny pieces of metal were removed by the physician.

NATIONAL GUARD
TO BE EQUIPPED

BRIEF HISTORY OF ITS ORGA-NIZATION AND GROWTH.

WILL BE UP-TO-DATE NOW

Government Plans to Place Them on Basis Where They Can Meet Any Emergency That May Arise.

(Special Correspondence.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—The awakening of interest in the organization and equipment of the National Guard is almost universal in all the states. In this connection the story of the American Guard, from the beginning will be of interest to all readers. It is the theory of our form of government that in case of war the government must rely on its citizen soldiers for defense, and that a large standing army is not, and never can be necessary. That being the theory it would naturally occur to the least observant that the militia should constantly receive the approbation and encouragement of the governing authorities. Until within a comparatively few years congress has been very remiss in its treatment of the militia. Except in most of the wars with the Indians and our recent war with Spain, it has been the volunteers and not the regulars that did most of the fighting, not that the regulars did not fight, but because they composed but a small portion of the forces of the government. In all the wars the government has been engaged in it has been handicapped very greatly by the want of a well organized and trained militia.

Congress very early recognized the need of an organized militia, and took some steps toward encouraging such an organization. But in the early history of our government lack of means made these steps very small and inadequate for effective work.
The first law on the subject will prove a curiosity in these days of great achievements. One section reads as follows:

"Every citizen so enrolled and notified, shall, within six months thereafter, provide himself with a good musket, or firelock, a sufficient bayonet and belt, two spare flints, and a knapsack; a pouch, with a box therein to contain not less than twenty-four cartridges, suited to the bore of his musket or firelock; each cartridge to contain a proper quantity of powder and ball; or, with a good rifle, knapsack, shot pouch and powder horn, twenty balls, suited to the bore of his rifle, and a quarter of a pound of powder."

This act was passed in 1789 and it will be seen that the militiaman was expected to furnish his own arms and ammunition, and equip himself thoroughly at his own expense. In those days nearly every man had a rifle or musketry, as it was necessary for the defense of his family and the community against Indian raids. But the section in regard to the arms and equipments of the officers is more of a curiosity than the other, and refers to some equipments the National Guardians of today would be at a loss to know the use of. Another curiosity in the section is the provision that the militiaman should hold his arms and equipments exempt from taxes or payment of debts. It reads:

"With a sword or hanger, and es-cortation; and that from and after five years from the passage of this act, all muskets for the arming the militia, as herein required, shall be of bores sufficient for balls of the eightteenth part of a pound. And every citizen so enrolled, and providing and equipping the arms, ammunition and accoutrements as are aforesaid, shall hold the same exempt from all suits, distresses, executions, or sales, for debt, or for the payment of taxes."

A few years later there came a breath of war with France, and on the seas several encounters took place between American and French war vessels. The prospect was so strong that it was felt best to strengthen the militia and the sum of $400,000 was appropriated to procure 30,000 stands of arms to be sold to the several states for the armament of the militia. These arms were to be held for sale, but if not sold, they were to be delivered to the militia when called into the service of the United States. It was also provided that for artillery and cavalry the government would "loan" guns and equipments to the states. This was the first direct appropriation for arms for the militia, and it will be seen the government did not propose to supply the arms, but to sell them to the states.

As early as 1808 the relations between this country and Great Britain were so strained that it was thought best by congress to take some active measures toward arming the militia, and a law was enacted making an annual appropriation of $200,000 for the purpose of providing arms and military equipments for the whole body of the militia of the United States. The arms and equipments were to be purchased or manufactured at the government arsenals. In 1816 congress made this a continuing appropriation, providing that the unexpended balance of any year should not be covered back into the treasury, but carried forward to the credit of the fund to be expended in the future. This condition of affairs continued for about forty years without material change. But the militia spirit was not very strong among the people, and but few states had any real organized body. Under the existing law the arms were distributed just as they might be called for, or as the secretary of war thought best.

"In 1855 an act was passed regulating the method of distribution, providing, among other things, that the arms should be apportioned to the various states in proportion to the number of their senators and representatives in congress. For the territories and for the District of Columbia the President was to use his judgment as to the number supplied. Under the act a number of the states, not having any organized militia, did not draw their quota, although they were entitled to do so regardless of the fact that they had taken no steps to organize the militia force. Other

CANTON JANESVILLE'S
FIFTH ANNUAL BALL
ATTENDED BY 300

Thirty Chevaliers and Ladies Came on a "Special" from Rockford—Assembly Hall a Blaze of Shining Banners.

Assembly hall, canopied with bunting and side walls gleaming with the nation's starry banner, was the scene of the fifth annual ball of Canton Janesville No. 9, Patriarchs Militant, the uniform rank of Odd Fellows, last evening, and over 300 dancers participated in the festivities which lasted until one o'clock this morning.
Forty-two chevaliers in full regalia took part at half past eight o'clock in the grand march led by Past Commandant Fred H. Koebelin and wife, Past Commandant James A. Fathers and Miss Elsie Fathers, Past Commandant Charles Schwartz and wife, and A. H. Hagen and Miss Behling.
Intricate and beautiful figures, were traced out with perfect precision, presented a semi-military panorama which was at once alluring and inspiring to the many spectators.

Of the Illinois staff officers of the order only Capt. Mark Jardine of Eureka, Canton Rockford, put in an appearance. Late yesterday afternoon a telegram was received from James Henry Harris of Chicago, major general and department commander, stating that he and several of his assistants who had expected to be present, had found it impossible at the last moment to come. Chevaliers and their ladies, numbering thirty, however, came from Rockford on a special car, taking their departure at midnight.

Knelt & Hatch's orchestra had charge of the musical program and the decorating was done under the direction of J. W. Van Beuren. The arrangements committee consisted of Harry P. Robinson, Charles W.
Schwartz, and James A. Fathers, all past commandants, and the following served on the floor committee: F. H.
Koebelin, Louis V. Paul, Geo. H.
Webster, Walter S. Kerry, and Wil-

Henry Sanford, Representing Department of Commerce and Labor, Completed Work Here Today.

Henry Sanford, statistical expert of the United States department of commerce and labor, who came here on Dec. 26 to investigate the divorce records of Rock county for the twenty years intervening between January 1, 1887, and December 31, 1906, completed his labor here this morning. He has traced and recorded the period of cohabitation after marriage, the primary and secondary causes of the separation, the number of children; and other data. In a total of 1,031 cases. The statistics are to be used by the department as material on which to base and frame the proposed new uniform divorce law for the nation. Mr. Sanford and wife departed this noon for Monroe where the Green county records are to be the subject of inquiry. Before leaving Mr. Sanford expressed his high appreciation of the courtesy shown him by the court house officials. He has enjoyed his stay in Janesville and was regretful that his stay here had to come to an end.

Friends of M. Swain, tenant, and C. F. Mathias, owner, of a farm in claim that the crop of 6,410 pounds of high class tobacco grown on three acres and marketed last week is the largest ever raised on any similar area in the state of Wisconsin. Mr.

Mathias is in charge of the East Side hitching stable, and the leaf was grown on shares. It was sold to Mr.

pound straight, making a total of $961.50 and an average of over $320 per acre.

LINCOLN ISSUE OF
MAGAZINE SECTION

Next Saturday's Offering is Full of Interesting Reading Matter.

We believe that the sixth issue of the Magazine Section bearing date February 9th is worthy of a special announcement in our local columns.
It might be termed a "Lincoln issue." The cover is made from an unpublished photograph of him and the opening page is a decorative tribute to his memory.

In the general contents will be found a clever story by W. E. Grogan, entitled "The Withdrawn Painting," "The Governor's Pardon," by Dorothy Dirix, "New Light on the Burr Conspiracy" (well illustrated), "Beautifying the Home Town," by Katherine Louise Smith, and a sketch of the stage and home life of Richard Mansfield.

The colored comics, "The Tale of the Bandit Mouse," deal this week with their antics at a birthday party, and will be sure to attract the children.

The serial, "When Wilderness was King," is now well into the complicated plot of the story and is worth a bold type line.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Snow tonight; Thursday warmer.

REGARD FOR LIFE

The exhibition of life saving appliances, or of devices intended to prevent loss of life or physical injuries, is attractive because of the inventive ingenuity displayed, but still more is it inspiring because of its manifestation of a benevolent spirit and of a growing regard for the higher aims of civilization. It is not altogether unique, it is exceptional. Exhibitions of money making devices have been plentiful. Nine-tenths of our industrial and commercial displays have been primarily of that character. If they have contained devices of the sort now shown, these have been merely incidental. A positive step forward is denoted by the organization of an exhibition of contrivances not one of which has the making of money for its primary object, but, instead, the physical welfare of the workman.

The reproach has often been uttered that industrial progress is effected on a Car of Juggernaut, reckless of the number of its victims. We do not believe that is altogether just. The more primitive and less efficient industrial processes of ages ago claimed their toll of human limb and life as remorselessly and probably quite as largely as those of today. Hood wrote "The Song of the Shirt" before the invention of the sewing machine. The reproach for which there is some ground, however, is that invention and enterprise have not always been directed toward the safety and welfare of the workers and of the public as much as toward the profit of the proprietor. Labor saving devices are not for the saving of labor per se, but for the substitution of cheaper machine labor for costlier human labor. The aim is economy, rather than ease or safety. A contrivance which would afford workmen better protection from injury or would make their toil lighter and its conditions less irksome is not always so sure of acceptance and adoption as one which would lessen the cost of production and thus increase the profits of business.

If, then, modern industry is not to be reproached with increasing the toll of human limb and life, it may to a degree be reproached for not materially decreasing it or for not still more largely decreasing it. The progress of civilization should mean progress in the general welfare of humanity, and a raising of all the standards of human life. The discoveries of Jenner, Simpson, Morton, Lister, Pasteur and others are rightly accounted among the greatest triumphs of modern science and invention, because of their effect in lessening human suffering and saving life from the ravages of wounds and disease. A similarly grateful regard should be given to inventions which lessen the discomfort and danger of industry, of travel and of all the ordinary activities of life. Efficiency in production, in profit making and in speed has been pushed to a marvelous degree. It will be well to catch up with it, at least, in efficiency for the protection of human limb and life.

THAT EVACUATION

St. Petersburg advises are that the evacuation of Manchuria began on the last of January. This is probably the twenty-fifth time since the Portsmouth treaty that the evacuation of Manchuria by Japanese or Russian troops has been announced. But for the endless chain of evacuation, what interest would the world have in recalling that epoch making conflict in the Orient?

Let the process of evacuation go on indefinitely, until the last soldier shall have had his last look on the country which his presence has cursed for ten years at least, and let the peaceful pursuit of agriculture, manufactures and trade go on without being hampered by any military interference. Manchuria needs business rather than bayonets, and the more of the former and the less of the latter the better it will be for all that vast country which oriental and occidental enterprise is prepared to develop.

Well, supposing Wisconsin has to endorse some one for president, why not make it Root or Taft? Root is the ablest man in public life and Taft is second. Fairbanks is too cold to really enthrone the people and the rest of the men mentioned are out of the question.

Since the last defeat the Quaker City reformers have been decidedly quiet and subdued. Politics in Philadelphia and general cussedness do not go well together.

New York society women would like to attend the Thaw trial in a body, but the law says no, so they must be content to stay at home and read the sordid details of the affair.

Roosevelt appears to have forgotten himself at the Gridiron dinner recently and made a decided speech in which he attacked Senators and the Senate.

Anyone who thought this was going to be a mild winter should have consulted with the North Dakota farmers before making any rash predictions.

Details are not lacking to show that the present session of the legislature means to accomplish much in the way of reform if they are allowed.

It would appear as though the first witness for Thaw as an expert on insanity did not do much to help the case of his client.

Upon adjournment Mr. McDonald announced the formation of the company, and added: "Everything is now ready for the actual work of digging."

Mr. McDonald declined to say whether he would resign the office of vice president of the Interborough Metropolitan company, to which he recently was elected. At the time it was announced that he would have complete charge of construction work for the Interborough-Metropolitan company.

Making the Dirt Fly.
Washington, Feb. 6.—While consideration is being given to the question of letting the contract for the digging of the Panama canal, the work is going on there at a rapid pace. Numerous reports from time to time have been submitted regarding the progress being made, but a cablegram received at the war department Tuesday from Chief Engineer Sloyens contained the announcement that all previous records had been eclipsed. The dispatch is as follows:

"We took out 556,750 cubic yards from Culebra cut in January, about twice the best monthly record made by the French since inception of work by DeLesseps."

Be alive to your own interests. Let him do your dentistry, and keep that extra $5 bill in your inside pocket.

Sentiment is all O. K. Friendships are all right. But it takes money to buy groceries.

If you choose Dr. Richards for your dentist, you may have your teeth properly cared for and at the same time enjoy the comfortable sight of that extra five dollar bill peeping out at you every time you open your purse.

How can he do it?

Because he has not signed a written agreement with 3 or 10 other dentists swearing to charge everybody $10 each for gold crowns.

He makes the best crowns made in the city.

They are pure 22K gold.

They are beautiful.

His price of $5 leaves him a reasonable profit and he is satisfied.

PROMPT WORK SAVES PLANT

Fire Department and Employees Do Valuable Service in Saving Factory from Destruction.

In a fire this morning which threatened for a time to destroy the entire plant of the Janesville Machine Works the prompt work of the fire department aided by the employees of the company resulted only in the loss of several thousand dollars to the company and the delay in work in the factory will only be temporary. In fact, this afternoon with the exception of the painting room, the entire factory is running as though nothing had happened.

Fire Starts

It was shortly after ten this morning that box 151 was rung in from the Janesville Machine Company. A few moments later Chief Klein rang in a ten stroke, calling all firemen and every pound of pressure from the water works into service. While it was a stubborn fire to fight owing to its location in the paint tank, hampered by a lack of men and not a sufficient quantity of hose, Chief Klein and his men were able within a half hour to announce the fire was under control and all danger of destruction of the plant passed.

A Parlor Match

As far as can be learned the fire started from a parlor match which ignited on the floor near a tank of green paint. Almost instantly the flames caught on the woodwork of the tank itself and the eight men employed in this room were forced to flee for their lives. The heat immediately started the automatic sprinklers and it is perhaps due to this fact that the entire plant was not destroyed, together with the prompt response of the fire department.

Ten Streams

Chief Klein immediately ordered ten streams of water on the fire. Seven of these came from the river, pumped into the hose by the engine of the Machine company, while the other streams came directly from the water works. Firemen working in the interior of the building where the fumes from the paint tanks were thick experienced much inconvenience and were forced to make frequent trips to the windows in order to stay in the room and continue work. In the building where the fire broke out were the tank rooms, the erecting room, the stock room, the supply room and the machine shop. While the fire was confined to the paint room itself the water flooded the entire building, doing more or less damage.

All at Work

This afternoon Superintendent Craig announced that all the men were at work and all departments running full blast, except the paint room. This room he expects will be in shape to run by Monday next. The greatest damage was done by the water, thousands of gallons being thrown on the entire building by the fire department. With the exception of the green paint tank, in which the fire started, little or no damage was done to the room. The tank room has six tanks, including the varnish tanks, and the tanks not on fire were immediately covered to prevent serious loss. In fact, the tank on fire was flooded by the water so as to put out the flames, and a rough estimate on the actual fire loss to the building places the total at a thousand dollars, while the loss from water will bring this total up to much more.

Thousands of Gallons
From the time the fire rang in until Chief Klein gave three taps for the "out" call, seven hundred and twenty-five thousand five hundred and ten gallons of water were poured onto the flames. Mr. J. A. Craig lays great stress upon the efficient work of the fire department in saving the buildings, while Chief Klein says he was hampered seriously by the breaking of hose and lack of sufficient men to fight the stubborn fire.

While the real danger of the destruction of the plant was over soon after the fire started the fight for supremacy was a stubborn one and great credit is due the firemen and employees of the Janesville Machine Company who worked hard and fast. Freezing temperature added to the discomforts of the labor and the great deluge of water caused many to become drenched.

Words of Praise
Words of praise were heard on every side by the officers of the Machine company for the able work of the department. Had it not been for prompt work supplemented by the workmen themselves the entire plant was in danger of burning. As it is, the loss will be confined to a few thousand dollars and the work delayed only a few days.

H. A. Moehlenpach of Clinton Elected President of the District Association.

About thirty-five representatives of the independent telephone companies in the first congressional district assembled at the Hotel Myers today for organization. Richard Valentine was made temporary chairman and Alfred Slater of Beloit, temporary secretary. Subsequently H. A. Moehlenpach of Clinton was named as president of the association for the ensuing year and F. C. Grant of Janesville as secretary and treasurer. Mr. Moehlenpach in accepting the office thanked his associates for giving him the opportunity of doing some more work and he was re-elected to the position. He said that 6,500 phones were represented at the meeting, not counting Racine, one of the strong holds, which, though no delegate, was present, was nevertheless in hearty sympathy with the movement to organize in this district. All of the companies were in good financial condition and the only thing needed to secure still further advantages was organization. He referred to the prospects of toll-line connection with Milwaukee as particularly bright. Secretary Ware of the Michigan association made an address in which he outlined the work being done in his state by the independent companies. Among the delegates present at the meeting were: C. H. Wisniewski, L. R. Whitman and W. B. Dies of Elkhorn; John C. Morchard of Brodhead; C. P. Trenning of Monroe; Alfred Slater of Beloit; E. T. Cass and A. J. Warner of Whitewater; O. L. Woodward and H. H. McCullough of Clinton; A. L. Moore of Brodhead; W. H. Pellington of Sharon; and Clarence Jordan of Stoughton.

BRILLIANT SOCIAL EVENT

Costumes Worn by Skaters of Surpassing Beauty, Novelty and Variety—Closed With a Confetti Battle.

Roller skates were yet to be invented when during the annual six or seven days of carnival preceding Ash Wednesday Sixtus V. in 1555 reformed the evil custom of throwing dirt and dust and flour at passengers, permitting only flowers and sweetmeats to be tossed. Neither had such characters as Pochobon, Mr. Mcawber, Buster Brown, Ichabod Crane, Bo Peep, Kate Greensway, and the fairy Titania, nor such types as the American cowboy, the Rough Rider girl, the Gainsborough lady, Madame Bridge Whist, the colonial gentleman, the Queen of Hearts, the Moorish fortune teller, the Scotch Highlander, the Canadian snow-shoer, the Park policeman, the horse-woman of the fashion pages, the American hunter and hunteress, the nurse, the waitress, the "haysack" the polo player, and the circus clown, found any fixed places in the pages of history or fiction. All these and many others were gathered at the West Side rink last evening at the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Harris, and the Misses Vera and Elisabeth Wilcox. Myriads of Chinese lanterns, suspended from the rafters, brightly illuminated the fantastic scene, and it is said to one that Sixtus, witnessing this survival of that odd ante-lenten masquerading and festival spirit which caused him so much trouble, would have been well pleased, or at least well content. Every present, the guests numbering 150 in all and including a large number of spectators, was delighted and all, by common consent, declared it to be one of the most unique and novel social events that had ever taken place in Janesville.

Gray and Carter's orchestra played, and in the gliding, swirling stream of color that responded to the music appeared and re-appeared such unguessed personages as Dr. C. G. Dwight, Miss Katherine Fifield, and Miss Racine Bostwick, all in the costumes of Scotch Highlanders; Douglas King, as a Hebrew merchant, from Hanover; Mrs. Normal Carle, as the bridge whist lady; the Misses Donald Seals of Birmingham, Alabama, and Pearl Peters, as maidens from the Zuyder Zee; Judge John H. Adams of Beloit as the western plainsman armed with a huge horse pistol, and riding quirt; Mrs. Adams, as a nursemaid; Mrs. A. J. Harris as the shepherdess of the nursery rhymes; A. J. Harris and N. L. Carle, as clowns; Miss Elisabeth Wilcox, as the Heart Queen; Miss Vera Wilcox, in a gown of black trimmed with wings and gorgeous "scales" butterfly and the Misses Charles Bostwick and W. W. Watt as Moorish soothsayers; Stanley Woodruff as a Spanish bullfighter; Fred Green, as Outcault's comic supplement hero; William McNeil, as a gentleman of the time of George Washington; the Misses Josephine Treat and Louise Merrill in Russian costume; Mrs. J. L. Wilcox and Miss Winifred Fifield, as Indian maidens; W. G. Wheeler, as a locomotive engineer; George Buchholz, as a sailor; Judge and Mrs. Charles L. Fifield, as followers of the chase; Bert Watt, as a locomotive fireman; John Shearer as the ancient schoolmaster Irving wrote about; Orion Sutherland as Dickens' famous character; Miss Charlotte Mount, as a western girl; Miss Anna DeForest as "The Snow Lady"; Miss Mae Treat, as "The Girl in Brown"; Fred Capelle, as a laborer with the ears—such ears!—Charles Tallman, with snow-shoes, shoulder-strings, as a Canadian tracker; Edward Behrendt, as "Old Aunt Liz"; George Tallman, as a Black Friar; Miss Joan Shearer, as a Spanish scorpion; W. W. Watt, with the sabre, boots, and spurs of an Austrian Hussar; Herbert Ford, as "Old Mrs. Grundy"; Mrs. H. G. Carter, as a nurse; Mrs. Charles Schaller, as the picture-postal girl; Mrs. Edward Peterson, as the green lady of Mother Goose; Mrs. C. G. Dwight, as the Gainsborough lady in red; H. G. Carter as "Little Boy Blue"; C. S. Putnam, as a gentleman from the remote precincts; Mrs. Louise Bowerman, as the horsewoman; Mesdames W. H. Palmer and J. D. King, as school-girls; and Mrs. H. L. McNamara as "The Girl in Pink".

Just before the grand march, which was led by Al Schaller, made up as an "insouciant looking" polo player, and Miss Elisabeth Schicker, a sailor girl, there arrived, upon the scene a delegation of low German comedians, attired in gorgeous waistcoats, low crowned dicers, and atrocious masques, and wearing great rosettes which announced: "The Ham Tree Club." The personnel of this party was Charles Bostwick, Leo Brownell, Alec Russell, Mark Bostwick, Sam Echlin, E. V. Whitton, and Bernard Palmer, and the noisy entrance of the seven attracted the immediate attention of David Atwood and William Ruger, policemen, and R. M. Bostwick, garbed in a convict's coat of many stripes. Miss Eureka Kimball and Miss Zeena Harris were attired in fancy costumes, and Miss Imogene Keller appeared in the guise of a Mexican maiden. Harry McNamara was a King's jester; R. H. Van Cleave, a member of the life-saving crew; and the Messrs. Spalding Peck and Isaac J. Daley of Madison, were simply masked.

Unmasking followed the grand march and toward midnight refreshments were served in the east section of the rink. Then, after the "Home Sweet Home" number had been played, spectators and skaters were provided with great quantities of confetti and serpentines (wound streamers of colored paper), and a "battle" which was indescribably beautiful and fascinating to the eye closed the merry evening.

In Justice Court: In Judge Reed's court today a judgment in the sum of $15.10 was rendered for the plaintiff in the action of Peter L. Myers vs. A. W. Slocum. The suit was brought to recover rental money on a building owned by the plaintiff.

Do You Like Honest, Square Dealing?

Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines are put out under the belief that publicity is the best possible guaranty of merit, and that the most intelligent people generally want to know what they take into their stomachs, whether it be as food, drink or medicine. Although it was a bold step to take, and quite out of the usual practice of makers of proprietary medicines, yet Dr. Pierce, some time ago, decided to publish broadcast and on all his bottle-wrappers all the ingredients entering into the composition, or make-up, of his celebrated family medicines. A square deal is therefore assured every one using his medicines, for one knows exactly what he or she is paying for when purchasing them; since every ingredient is published in plain English on the bottle-wrappers and the correctness of the same attested under solemn oath. These several ingredients are selected from among the very best known to medical science for the cure of the various diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

The most eminent and leading medical teachers and writers of all the several schools of practice have endorsed each of the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines in the strongest possible terms. The makers of Dr. Pierce's medicines believe that intelligent people do not wish to know what they are taking, but they want to know what they are getting. They are therefore, in the way of food, drink or medicine, without knowing anything of the properties and harmful character of the agents employed. They believe that health is too sacred a heritage to be experimented with, and that people should not take medicines of the composition of which they are kept ignorant. Dr. Pierce's medicines are made wholly from the roots of plants found growing in the depths of our American forests. They are also compounded of the most delicate and purest of the most delicate woman or child. By open publicity Dr. Pierce has taken his medicines out of the list of secret nostrums, of doubtful merit, and made them REMEDIES OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. They are therefore, in a class all by themselves, being absolutely and in every sense non-secret.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

There is a badge of honesty on every bottle of Dr. Pierce's medicines in the full list of its ingredients duly attested as correct under solemn oath.

No other medicines put up for general use through druggists can make claim to any such distinction, and none other than Dr. Pierce's medicines have any such professional endorsement of their ingredients. Such professional endorsement should have far more weight with the afflicted than any amount of lay, or non-professional, endorsement, or testimonials.

Of course, the exact proportion of each ingredient used in Dr. Pierce's medicines as well as the working formula or manner of preparing the same, and the specially devised apparatus and appliances employed in their manufacture, are withheld from publicity that Dr. Pierce's proprietary rights may be fully protected from such unprincipled imitators as might be piratically inclined. The preparation of these medicines without the use of a drop of alcohol, so generally employed and yet so harmful, in the long run, to most invalids when its use is long continued, even in small doses, cost Dr. Pierce several years of careful study and labor, with the aid of skilled pharmacists and chemists to give away his scientific and exact processes for preparing these medicines, but he does want to deal in the most open manner with all his patrons and patients, and under this frank, open and honest way of dealing, they may know exactly what they are taking when using his medicines.

What Do They Cure? This question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery," and "Favorite Prescription." The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alternative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative and healing way upon all the various lining surfaces as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach, (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhoea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is often successful in effecting a cure.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of a class of diseases of a peculiar character, weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women. It is a powerful, yet gently acting invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and is held confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address as above.

THE HOUSE OF A THOUSAND CANDLES

By MARGARET NICHOLSON

"We girls all wish we could come over and help hunt the lost treasure. It must be simply splendid to live in a house where there's a mystery—secret passages and chests of doubloons and all that sort of thing! My! Squire Glenarm, I suppose you spend all your nights exploring secret passages?"

This free expression of opinion startled me, though she seemed wholly innocent of impertinence. "Who says there's any secret about the house?" I demanded.

"Oh, Ferguson, the gardener, and all the girls!"

"I fear Ferguson is drawing on his imagination."

"Well, all the people in the village think so. I've heard the candy shop woman speak of it often."

"She'd better attend to her taffy," I retorted.

"Oh, you mustn't be sensitive about it! All us girls think it ever so romantic, and we call you, sometimes the lord of the realm, and when we see you walking through the darkling woods at evening we say, 'My lord, is brooding upon the treasure chests?'"

This delivered in the stilted tone of one who was half quoting and half improvising, was irresistibly funny, and I laughed with good will.

"I hope you've forgiven me—" I kicked the gate to knock off the snow, and took the key from my pocket.

"But I haven't, Mr. Glenarm. Your assumption is, to say the least, unwarranted—I got that from a book!"

"It isn't fair for you to know my name and for me not to know yours," I said leadingly.

"You are Mr. John Glenarm—the gardener told me—and I am just Olivia. They don't allow me to be called 'Miss' yet. I'm very young, sir!"

"You've only told me half"—and I kept my hand on the closed gate. The snow still fell steadily and the short afternoon was nearing its close. I did not like to lose her—the life, the youth, the mirth for which she stood. Lights already gleamed in the school buildings, straight before us, and the sight of them smote me with loneliness.

"Olivia Gladys Armstrong," she said, laughing, brushed past me through the gate and ran lightly over the snow toward St. Agatha's.

CHAPTER X.

An Affair With the Caretaker.

I read in the library until late, hearing the howl of the wind outside with satisfaction in the warmth and comfort of the great room. Bates brought in some sandwiches and a bottle of ale at midnight.

"If there's nothing more, sir—" "That is all, Bates." And he went off sedately to his own quarters.

I was restless and in no mood for bed, and mourned the lack of variety in my grandfather's library. I moved about from shelf to shelf, taking down one book after another, and while thus engaged came upon a series of large volumes extra illustrated in water colors of unusual beauty. They occupied a lower shelf, and I sprang on the floor like a boy with a new picture book in my absorption, piling the great volumes about me. They were on related subjects pertaining to the French chateaux.

In the last volume I found a sheet of white note paper no larger than my hand, a forgotten book mark, I assumed, and half crumpled it in my fingers before I noticed the lines of a pencil sketch on one side of it. I carried it to the table and spread it out.

It was not the bit of idle pencilling it had appeared to be at first sight. A scale had evidently been followed and the lines drawn with a ruler. With such trifles my grandfather had no doubt amused himself. There was a long corridor indicated, but of this I could make nothing. I studied it for several minutes, thinking it might have been a tentative sketch of some part of the house. In turning it about under the candelabrum I saw that in several places the glaze had been rubbed from the paper by an eraser, and this piqued my curiosity. I brought a magnifying glass to bear upon the sketch. The drawing had been made with a hard pencil and the eraser had removed the lead, but a well defined imprint remained.

I was able to make out the letters, N. W. % to C.—a reference clearly enough to points of the compass and a distance. The word ravine was scrawled over a rough outline of a foot, and I walked down to the end of the passage there—he indicated the direction with a light jerk of his head—and slept until it was time to go to work.

"If you can't lie better than that you needn't try again. Face about, now, and march!"

I put new energy into my tone, and he turned and walked before me down the corridor, in the direction from which he had come. We were, I dare say, a pretty pair—he tramping doggedly before me, I following at his heels with his lantern and my pistol.

"Not so fast," I admonished sharply.

"Excuse me," he replied mockingly. He was no common rogue; I felt the quality in him with a certain admiration for his scoundrelly talents.

I continued at his heels, poking the muzzle of the revolver against his back from time to time to keep him assured of my presence—a device that I was to regret a second later.

When we were, I should judge, about ten yards from the end of the corridor, at that moment I prodded him with the point of the revolver, he fell backward against me, threw his arms over his head and grasped me about the neck, meanwhile turning himself lithely until his fingers clasped my throat. The lantern fell from my hand and one, or the other of us smashed it with our feet.

A wrestling match in that dark hole was not to my liking. I still held onto the revolver, waiting for a chance to use it, and meanwhile he tried to throw me, forcing me back against one side and then another of the corridor.

With a quick rush he flung me away, and in the same second I fired.

The roar of the shot in the narrow corridor was deafening. I flung myself on the floor, expecting a return shot, and quickly enough a flash broke upon my forehead, dead ahead, and I rose to my feet, fired again and leaped to the opposite side of the corridor and crouched there. We had adopted the same tactics, firing and dodging to avoid the target made by the flash of our pistols, and watching and listening after the roar of the explosions.

It was a very pretty game, but not destined to last long. He was slowly retreating toward the end of the passage where there was, I remembered, a dead wall. His only chance was to crawl through an area window I knew to be there, and this would, I felt sure, give him into my hands.

After five shots apiece there was a truce. The pungent smoke of the powder caused me to cough, and he laughed.

"Have you swallowed a bullet, Mr. Glenarm?" he called.

I could hear his feet scraping on the cement floor; he was moving away from me, doubtless intending to fire when he reached the area window and escape before I could reach him. I crept warily after him, ready to fire on the instant, but not wishing to throw away my last cartridge.

He was now very near the end of the corridor. I heard his feet strike some boards that I remembered lay on the floor there, and I was nerved for a shot and a hand-to-hand struggle, if it came to that.

I was sure that he sought the window. I heard his hands on the wall as he felt for it. Then a breath of cold air swept the passage, and I knew that he must be drawing himself up to the opening. I fired and dropped to the floor. With the roar of the explosion I heard him yell, but the expected return shot did not follow.

The pounding of my heart seemed to mark the passing of hours. I feared my foe was playing some trick, creeping toward me, perhaps, to fire at close range, or to grapple with me in the dark. The cold air whistled into the corridor, and I began to feel the chill of it. Being fired upon is disagreeable enough, but waiting in the dark for the shot is intolerable. I rose and walked toward the end of the passage.

Then his revolver flashed and roared directly ahead, the flame of it so near that it blinded me and the wad of the cartridge burned and stung my cheek. I fell forward dazed and blinded, but shook myself together in a moment and got upon my feet. The draft of air no longer blew into the passage. Morgan had taken himself off through the window, and closed it after him. I made sure of this by going to the window and feeling it with my hands.

I went back and groped about for my candle, which found without difficulty and lighted. I then returned to the window to examine the catch. To my utter astonishment it was fastened with staples; driven deep into the sash in such a way that it could not possibly have been opened without an expenditure of time and labor.

CATARRH A UNIVERSAL BLOOD DISEASE

Catarrh is usually worse in Winter, because of the cold, damp and suddenly changing climate. Colds are contracted, and neglected and as the secretions from the different inflamed membranes are absorbed into the blood the unpleasant symptoms of the disease commence. The nostrils are stopped up and a constant dropping of mucus back into the throat keeps up a continual hawking and spitting. The patient has dull headaches, ringing noises in the ears, and often slight fever and a depressed, half-sick feeling accompanies the disease. The blood becomes so fully charged with catarrhal matter that stomach troubles are brought on, the kidneys and bladder are affected, and if the blood is not purified of the poison the lungs become diseased because of the constant passage of impure blood through them. Catarrh cannot be cured with washes, sprays, inhalations and such treatment; these cannot reach the poison-laden blood where the real cause is located, and can only give temporary relief and comfort. A disease which affects the entire blood supply as does Catarrh, must be treated with a blood purifier. S. S. S. is the best remedy for Catarrh, which has grown to be a universal disease. It goes to the bottom of the trouble, rids the blood of the catarrhal matter, reinvigorates the circulation, and cures this disgusting disease permanently. When S. S. S. has purified the blood every part of the system receives a supply of fresh, healthy blood, then the inflamed membranes heal and every symptom of Catarrh passes away. Write for our book containing information about Catarrh, and ask for any medical advice you desire. No charge is made for either.
